Introduction

Thank you for your interest in participating in this project. Please take the time to read this information carefully. You may ask questions about anything you don't understand or want to know more about. Your participation is voluntary: if you don't wish to take part, you don't have to. And if you begin participating, you can also stop at any time.

What is this research about?

To contribute to better support for children and young people who have lost a parent due to domestic homicide, we want to understand their experiences. We specifically want to look at experiences with living arrangements, relationships with family and friends, and self-view. We plan to interview young people and adults who have been bereaved, caregivers, and professionals like yourself, who have experience working with children and young people bereaved by domestic homicide. We will also include data from a similar study in the UK, to get a broader perspective and understand similarities and differences.

What will I be asked to do?

Should you agree to participate we will ask you to answer a few online questions about your background and to participate in an online Zoom interview. The online questions will take about 5 minutes. The length of the interview depends on how much you want to share; we expect the minimum time to be approximately 30 minutes. The interview will be recorded.

What are the possible benefits?

We hope that this project will lead to better support for young people and families affected by domestic homicide; we will share our findings with policy makers and practitioners for this purpose. There are no direct benefits for yourself, other than hopefully an interesting conversation.

What are the possible risks?

The topic of our project is a serious one and can affect professionals emotionally, for example if you also have lived experience of domestic violence. If the interview raises emotions, our experienced interviewers will support you, and you can stop or skip questions at any time. We can also give you tips about mental health support options.

Do I have to take part?

Not at all. Participation is completely voluntary. You can withdraw at any time before or during the interview. Please note that if you withdraw after the interview, your data may already have been included in the analysis and we cannot 'undo' that.

Will I hear about the results of this project?

Yes! We are keen to let you know the results. We will share a summary with you via email and you can be involved in sharing and discussing the results if you like.

What will happen to information about me?

We have several procedures to keep your information safe and confidential, subject to any legal requirements. For example, we won't share your name in our reports (unless you ask us to be named). Because of the frequent media exposure and the unique circumstances of families affected by domestic homicide, there is a possibility that someone recognises a situation you have been involved in. If this is a concern to you, we recommend that you do not participate.

For writing out (transcribing) the Zoom interviews, we may make use of the services of Otter.ai, a company that uses automated software rather than human transcribers. Information captured in your interview recording will be subject to Otter.ai's Terms of Service and Privacy Policy. Otter.ai stores and processes information overseas.

We will keep information from the project on the servers of the University, in line with legal requirements, indefinitely. Your information may be used for future projects on domestic violence by members of our team (e.g. further international comparisons of families' experiences after domestic homicide).

Who is funding this project?

This project is funded by the Australian Research Council (ARC).

Who can I contact if I have any concerns about the project?

This project has human research ethics approval from The University of Melbourne (reference number 14504). If you have any concerns or complaints about the conduct of this research project, which you do not wish to discuss with the research team, you should contact the Research Integrity Administrator, Office of Research Ethics and Integrity, University of Melbourne, VIC 3010. Tel: +61 8344 1376 or Email: research-integrity@unimelb.edu.au. All complaints will be treated confidentially. In any correspondence please provide the name of the research team and/or the name or ethics ID number of the research project.

Where can I get support if I want counselling?

There are several ways in which you can get one-off or multi-session counselling. These are all independent of this project. We are more than happy to talk about the options for you, also if you decide not to participate in the research.

In general, good places to start for one-off support are Life Line (<https://www.lifeline.org.au> or phone 13 11 14) and Beyond Blue (<https://www.beyondblue.org.au> or phone 1300 22 4636). These services are free of charge.

For multi-session support, your general practitioner (GP) can provide you with a mental health treatment plan to get a Medicare rebate and refer you to a mental health professional in your area. You can also search for these yourself via Find a Psychologist and Find a Social Worker (you can insert key words to search for specialisations). Many employers also have independent Employee Assistance Programs.
